THE COUNTY OF ONTARIO

George E. POWELL, Jr.
Secretary

[illegible]

the time to consider a term of twenty years.

It was the first time that I had been asked to give a separation from the old county. The accumulating county business, which is now literally choking up every department of our county affairs, in this large county, has long ripened for a division of the County of York, and especially now when other counties, of not half its extent or population, were cheerfully availing themselves of those district divisions which of necessity forced themselves on them. I was not, however, without my own doubts as to whether our local concerns were not so entangled and so intermingled with those of the metropolis, as to be uncontrollable by the City of Toronto. The time had arrived, the general voice of the people now demanded a separation, and he had always and was always ready to bow to that voice, especially when he heartily concurred in the justice of the demand. The manseeping of every action is self-interest, and he trusted that no man present was so insensible to the interests of his constituents as to be so ready to give up the immediate erection of our county buildings, and a speedy separation. Why should we avail by delay? Could we stave off the network of taxation that is now being prepared to contend over us by the City of Toronto? The County of York is not only erecting a Court House, which the adverse interests to this section have needlessly hurried on the Council in anticipation of the present event, but they contemplate further improvement and heavy expenditures, to avoid which is our solemn duty to our constituents. Why did they hurry this matter? The great and expensive improvements that have been made in the past years rendered the county buildings sufficiently convenient for many years to come, and after our separation more than sufficient; but York and Peel have sought to get rid of us for ever, and to secure a safe and sound future for all, we must first of us first discharge our contracting obligations. (Cheers.) Any opposition here now will be but adding additional power to the efforts of York and Peel to take from us to the utmost farthing. We cannot stay off separation indefinitely. It will ultimately come; and what claim can we have hereafter, by arbitration or otherwise, on the County of York for refunding our equitable share of these contemplated assessments if we delay the hour? Can we ask them to refund a share of the tax they have already paid, when we have not only our County but our own interests in jeopardy? Let us proceed then at once and place ourselves out of danger, and not remain at the mercy of York and Peel. (Cheers.)

made until the question be referred to a direct vote of the rate-payers of the county." He said that the people ought to give an expression of sentiment on the question. Should his township be in favour of the appropriation, he would not oppose it. Mr. Gault holds up the language of taxation, but the old county never taxed as municipalities, and he has no proof that they ever did so. The cost of the proposed extension of the water works was $10,000, and the cost of transferring organization of titles £ 6,000, but notwithstanding this if he could see how we were to be benefited by a separation, he would not oppose it. The people did not want it. If such had been circulated, but how were they secured? Again, is this a proper time to look at the county in heavy expenditures, while the great mass of the population are poor and struggling? It is true, some counties, it is said, have numerous and wealthy, have erected their bridges, and the roads are populous and wealthy, have risen to their thronos. When I was layed out for my coffin, it was when I was not yet 40 years of age, and I had a wife and a young son, and I had hoped to see the day when I should be the father of a family. I was now in the hands of Whithy, then called Mr Perry, he would go to his division. Circumstances, however, have changed since then, and the same necessity does not exist. Besides, the Government, acting on liberal principles, have taken the matter out of the people's hands, and he wished it restored to the people. Not till then would he yield a compliance. The cry for division was but an ignus fatuus, and the people would rise upon these that led them into the snare.

those that did, then into the future. The new government was the best model existing circumstances, and such as he expected Mr. Gould would himself introduce, from the expressions he had often heard him make, but that gentleman has changed his mind. He draws a tax to be levied by the old county; his how can he show that we will be relieved from it? It was well ascertained at the last meeting of the Council in Toronto, that a tax could not be levied on York and Peel without Ontario partaking of it, and it was resolved to refund any amount raised on Ontario for improvements in the old county. He thought that the people of the new county would be very anxious of letting the taxpayers decide the question. Why this haste? What has changed Mr. Gould's mind? He thought surely that the extension of the Division Court Act had lessened the necessity of separation. He found that the expenses of the new county would be about £2,000 per annum, and the people are now complaining of taxes. True, we would not enjoy municipal government without taxation, but the taxes for goods and contributions were not the least of the goods of the people; at least he would give the people the opportunity of saying whether they were so or not, and then he would retire to their decision.

Mr. Ewers would oppose the amendment of Mr. McNeill because that gentleman had not brought a single argument in favor of delay. Mr. Gibbs says the Legislature will settle the amount to be furnished by the old county, thus showing that even in his opinion a separation is not far distant; and it not far distant, why not at once, and before we are thoroughly convinced that the county bindings be left to the people, where should we not want them? What would Mr. Gibbs have us do, if not do as Oshawa once did, ask the Government to shut up the rock-holes? Whittier hurrah (Hear, hear.) If the site had been chosen in a certain neighborhood, public mind would be so set to it that it would be impossible to change the public mind. Citizens of the world would vote for the township.

Mr. Galloway opposed the resolution, because the petitions for division were signed by names of persons who, he would not say were unborn, but to his knowledge the names of suckling babies were attached to them.

Mr. Gibbs, in answer to Mr. Gould, said that as he had been confined by illness he could not learn whether the Court House in Toronto had been sold or not, and went on to show the expense of carrying on the county business, which he estimated yearly at £2,000.

Mr. Michell denied that the primary reason for his opposition now, and inquired that the reason for Lavall's change of position was that Mr. Michell said he opposed a division formerly on the grounds that Mr. Michell supported it. The unequal burdens on the back of township by an arbitrary assessment law, said he supported it now on the grounds that Mr. Michell opposed the appropriation, because the burden is now equal. If Mr. Michell, he said a stickler for appeals to the people in everything that the people expect him to act on, why not ask for an appeal to the people before he voted for the assessment in Toronto for the new bond.

(CHIEF)

Mr. Taylor was astonished at the factious opposition of Mr. Mitchell. He had nominated him on the ground of his promise not to oppose the appropriation, but he has wonderfully changed. For himself, he had always been the same under every circumstance, and would now vote for the appropriation, not only because he believed it to be just and sound policy, but because he believed the majority of his constituents thought likewise.

Mr. Dryden said that seven-eighths of the criminal energy of the country is belated to Toronto, and therefore if but one-third of the expense were borne by us, the amount would be but trifling compared to the estimates of Mr. Gibbs. That gentleman must be fond of exaggerations. Mr. Dryden spoke at considerable length, and believed Mr. Gibbs' opposition to the appropriation arose more from disappointment than anything else; for that gentleman knew well that should an assessment be levied in one year for erecting the buildings, it would not exceed a penny in the pound.

Mr. Mitchell rose to defend his consistency from the foul aspersions that had been cast upon it by Mr. Gould and others. He denied that he was influenced by selfish motives either when he opposed or advocated a division. He had circulated petitions in Pickering, but with all his influence could not get ten signers.

Mr. Gould asked the Reeves and Deputies to emphasize the consistency of Mr. Mitchell. He talks in at one time, when he was in favour of division, that four-fifths of Pickering were for division, and again that he could not get signers to the petitions for that object with all his influence. His arguments can no more hang together than the consistency of his various movements, and he regretted exceedingly the humiliating position that that gentleman was now in, and the position of the county, by his conduct in not making at least a faint, going fully into the different improvements of the old county buildings, to which we have been taxed different times; the object of the old county in pushing forward the present tax; and strongly urging the Council to make this glorious effort to advance the interests of this section of the county by voting the appropriation. He sat down amidst great cheering. The question was then put, and the result

The Council then adjourned, to meet again after the adjournment of the United Counties' Council at Toronto provided that the day be not Sunday, and it so, then the Monday following, in the Free Church at Whitby village. Mr. Hainman's residence, corner of Brock and Mary Streets, was the old Free Church; it was free to all denominations, and was largely used for public meetings.

When the Provisional Council met again on Monday, 16th May, there was no quorum, the members opposed to secession, numbering only half the body, all absented themselves from the meeting, by preconcerted arrangement as was charged, in order to prevent the transaction of business and to check further proceedings.

In 1852 was the County of Ontario organized, on the 30th May, 1852. The passage of a resolution to raise the necessary funds for the erection of the county buildings was its first important act. For six years previously the friends of the new county had struggled hard to give it existence. The difficulties in the way were numerous and threatening, and had to be overcome by the efforts of a few individuals, who, by their untiring labours, and the efforts of the clergy, school teachers, and others of Ontario, opposed to separation from the County of York, which, with the local politicians and divisions then raging, principally on account of the location of the county town at Whitby, might well have deferred from the task any less congenial or so long a time than those who were to be the first to enjoy its independence. The record gives the Mayor and City of the date as follows:

Years : Messrs. Rowe, Paxton, Gould, Robinson, Dryden, Taylor, Twells.

Nays: Messrs. Mitchell, Gibbs, Sproule, Calloway, Bouchet, M. Phelan, J. Carmichael. 7

The double vote of Mr Gould carried the day. Had he failed his friends, or hesitated to exercise his right to give the caste vote, as Provisional Warden, in favour of the appropriation at that supreme moment, the separate existence of the County of Ontario might have been indefinitely postponed, and Whistly schemes of being the future county town hopelessly abandoned. The construction of the Northern Railway in 1853, touching Lake Simcoe, and giving the northern townships a new outlet, would have lost Thora, and Mara and Rama, and probably Brock.

Nor was the struggle yet ended.

Not was the strongest yet missed what had happened and a document drawn up and signed by six of the protestors withdrawing from further attendance on the meetings of the Prisoners' Council. The ostensible reason put forward for this course was, that they wanted the whole question submitted to a vote of the ratepayers. This could, however, be only a pretence, for the ratepayers had been consulted at the previous municipal elections and had already instructed their representatives how to vote. Nevertheless, the Council as constituted had pronounced in favour of the protest and was consequently obliged to raise six thousand pounds for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the erection of the county hall.

The next meeting of the Provisional Council was held on Tuesday, 1st June, "in the lady's parlour," Whitby. Nine members were present upon this occasion, viz. Messrs Carmichael, Dryden, Ewers, Gould, McPherson, Paxton, Robinson, Rowe and Taylor.

Mr. McDougall has declared his intention to be Mr. James Ramsay MacDonald's representative in the Provincial Council. He made a special tour of the new constituency that he had, which he said was his aim of making the new order to be present to do justice. He was well received and entertained by the people of the town and the friends of the new order. Mr. Ramsay explained his position with regard to signing the protest, and said, "I had come to perform his duty under the law, and I approved of the course the Provincial Council were taking."

At this meeting William Paxton, junr., was appointed County Treasurer. The motion was moved by Mr. McDough, seconded by Mr. Lewis. The following resolution was also passed: it is here given to settle a question that — Moved by Mr. McDonough, seconded by Mr. Ewers : " That the Provincial Warden be instructed to receive as a good and lawful settlement securities for the following persons, viz. : James Dryden, Esq., William Paxton, senr., Thos. Saxton, esq., and Mr. George Paxton to the amount of £5,000, for the faithful performance of the duties of Provincial Treasurer of the County of Ontario." Carried.

A resolution was also passed requesting the Government to appoint immediately a Registrar and County Judge.

The by-law to raise the $6,000 for building purposes was again passed at this meeting, the legality of the previous action of the members of the Council, who did not constitute a full quorum, being doubtless regarded as open to question.

While the war of separation raged at this time, meetings were held in the various municipalities, at which resolutions were passed for and against, in approval or disapproval of the action of their representatives at the County Council. Unhappily especially passed resolutions heartily approving the course of Mr. Joseph Gould. In Polk, Me., Peter Taylor's course was condemned at a public meeting, while that of W. H. Michell was approved. The township was at the time divided into wards. The rate-payers of Mr. Taylor's ward (No. 1) subsequently held a meeting, voting confidence in him and denouncing Mr. Michell.

At the next meeting, which was held in the Free Church on Thursday, 14th June, the report of a committee appointed to draft an address to the Government, recommending parties for appointment to the several county offices, was presented. The recommendations made were for Sheriff, Ezra James; for Registrar, John Ham Ferry; for County Judge, Zechariah Burnham; and for Clerk of the Peace, Chester Draper. The report was amended by substituting the name of Charles Robinson, of Thioah, for that of Ezra James; and it was adopted. A resolution to present the report was made, through the interference of the Court of Chancery, which was then sitting in the new county. The Courts were also appealed to to quash the by-law for raising funds for erecting the county buildings, and to suspend a second by-law passed by the Provisional Council for raising £587 to meet contingent expenses. In the latter the opposition were successful, the by-law being quashed on technical grounds. Peter Taylor's seat was attacked on the ground that he was ineligible, inasmuch as he was Treasurer of the town of Peking, for which he sat as Deputy Reeve in the Provisional Council. Mr. John Taylor then moved the meeting for Maria and Rama was disallowed at Toronto, and Mr. McPherson retained his seat. The United Counties' Council as the representative of the northern townships. The proceedings against the new county came to nothing.

The representatives of York and Peel in the United Counties' Council, taking advantage of the differences between the Onnōmura and manipulated the assessment rolls to their own advantage. In the took no less than $200,000 off their own municipalities as amount upon the new county struggling into life. Each was $62,000. Warita $66,000, Itozange $13,000. Took $20,000. Nor did Oshawa escape; its value was also largely increased. I took in at this treatment and joined with the friends of the new in resisting the injustice.

The site for the county buildings was another bone of contention. Half-dozen were laid before the Building Committee north of Dupont Street, belonging to the Perry estate, being first rejected. This was not agreeable to the residents at the Bay, and, as a compromise, a site upon which the county buildings now stand. Two acres of the estate was accepted.

When the Provisional Council met on the 7th June, the by-law £6,000 for county buildings was finally passed, and the rate was approved. The contract was let to Mr James Wallace. After it was a breathing spell. It was, however, but of short duration. It proved that Oshawa, as a municipality, was not rated at 12, 14, or 16, as assessed, but the county upon which the rate was let for paying the debentures and interest issued for the £6,000 was believed would prove fatal to the legality of the by-law. It was not until the 6th day of July, 1871, that the contract, amounting to total of $61,000, most of it of $32, 000, the correct amount. The court said that the tax collector had not been diligent in collecting the tax from the delinquent county but does at Whittier, now confirmed as the then tax collector for that purpose. They had previously been taking a policy of "letting it slide" under delinquency, and paying less county taxes in proportion in the United Counties Council. They now sought to take advantage of their own wrong, with the view of receiving the same as A. B. Harrison got the credit of making the discovery of the error. The courts were again resorted to, but the attempt to recover was utterly failed, the same arguments of the delators in the case being by the Court.

At the first meeting of the Council for 1893, which was held on 10 February, there were present: From Wharfedale—James Bowdler, 1st baronet, deputy; Pickering—John Lumsden, reeve; Peterborough—Reuben J. French, reeve; P. A. Hurd, deputy; Stock—George F. Reeve, N. Holster, deputy; Thirsk—Joseph Gould, reeve; S. Galloway, reeve; Goosburgh—Boyd, reeve; Thorton—James J. Mott and Emma J. S. Gurnett, reeve; Oshawa—F. N. Col-

Mr. Gibbs was elected Provisional Senator, the vote by ballot. Some members of the Council took umbrage at it. Mr. Gibbs on taking his seat. He was introduced to the Senate & showed that his course in the past setting off of the new county, was not on right, and had been apt. This was by no means the case with some of the men.

term in which every inch of ground was being taken by letters full of charges and counter-claims and a flood of inflammatory editorials, by scores of affidavits, appeals, and full of forebodings of future rising protests and to the ratepayers against separation were scattered broadcast through the county, and public meetings and demonstrations of all kinds were unanimously held to keep the excitement going. The people of the County I was, however, the great stumbling block to these and the other side even though they oppose separation could not feel these now. On the evening of the session after session, by the men and the union with York and Peel. To the County of York and Peel, with a great deal of fighting, but at the same time, representative is to be held, and with a great deal of sympathy in its own locality. The latter found it was there was a hope or a chance, led on by Messrs. Smith, E. H. Emerson, James Rowe's election to the W. C. T. U. and the meets was a bitter pill to have to swallow. That is what it was to live in the wilderness one of being asked to do a better job than at the very next meeting we held Mr. Goody visiting with the members of the society with Mr. Good and Mr. Taylor, acting as a resolution of the committee to resign, "that no further action be taken in the next meeting at the county buildings, but that it would be conducive to the interest of the community in the County of York, that the County of York appears to have at last agreed to the inevitable. The new County buildings was allowed to go on without further interposition had subsided at the session of the Provincial Parliament, 1853. Georgia was represented at this session. The Legislature for a special Act to be granted to York. Mr. H. residence in Parliament secured the desired legislation from Mr. against the remonstrance of the County of Ontario. The bill was introduced and passed by the House of Commons. It was introduced in the House of Commons. A glance at the map will show that the County of Ontario, and that attaching it to York was a piece of only have been permitted by a Government decision.

The county buildings progressed rapidly in the late 1850s. By 1859, the contractor, On Plimley, the 30th June, had completed the main building with imposing Masonic ceremonies. The day was a Festival of the Animals of the county, and the evening was a grand ball. The week following

LAYING OF THE CORNER STONE

According to the information in the last, we know that the laying of the Foundation Stone of the Victoria Hotel in Ontario. It is not needed of us to enter into the almost overwhelming struggles of our public men and the important aspect of which the laying of the first stone in the 30th June, 1853, was the triumphant consummation of the heroic fortitude of Joseph Gault of the noble, persecuted and mist the whirlwind of rage and disappointment, and unity, and every species of abuse that could be meted out, unwavering spirit of a man who was to be remembered for his strength, and by his casting vote on the 1st of June 1853, in the provisions of the Municipal Act, founded to the 30th June, the laying of the first stone, for which he laboured so necessarily.

POPULATION STATISTICS

The names of the earliest settlers along the Lake Shore are Stevens Lockwood, McGeehen, Ransom, Majors, Wilson, Knapp, Stevens, and others. Farewell, Gimmelfield, Munger, Loyd, MacFarlane, and others were the townships of Pickering and Wainfleet from 1801 to 1808. The Burks, Truitts and Conds had previously, in 1795, been in the Baltimore. Mr Loyd, an Irishman, left the Burke in 1795. A number of German families emigrated from the Burke in 1794 and 1796 and settled to the west, about Markham. This migration was induced by the land bounty of Lieutenant-Governor Simcoe, 100 acres for each settler.

EARLY SETTLEMENT

CTION STATISTICS

The town's scattered settlers along the front road had many complaints of the war of 1812 to relate. The carrying of the despatches was an enterprise of no small difficulty and danger. They were forwarded from Toronto to Duffin's Creek, thence on to Lynd's and Farewell's, and the latter was obliged to forward them on to Wilmut & Newcastle. After the termination of the war of 1812 the growth and settlement of the county was sure and steady, and as well as in the synopsis given in the early part of this sketch will appear more in detail from remarks on the settlement of the several townships.

The river is a confluence of the upper and lower Hwang and Onnari. The lower Hwang is a tributary of the upper Hwang. Samguk, which is our source, says that the lower Hwang is in the district of Hwanghae, south of the lower Hwang. It is said in the history of the Northern Song of the Seventh century that the lower Hwang is the confluence of the Liao, Samguk, and Lake Onnari. The lower Hwang is a tributary of the Hwang Valley, which is a tributary of the Liao, the Liao of the River of Qian.

There is a growing consensus that the world is becoming more interconnected and that the impact of globalisation is increasing. This has led to a growing interest in the study of globalisation and its impact on society. The study of globalisation is a multidisciplinary field that draws on a variety of disciplines, including economics, sociology, political science, and geography. The study of globalisation is important because it helps us to understand the world we live in and the challenges we face. It also helps us to develop strategies to address these challenges. The study of globalisation is a rapidly growing field and there is a need for more research in this area. This book provides a comprehensive overview of the study of globalisation and its impact on society. It is a valuable resource for students, researchers, and anyone interested in the world we live in.

For the first two years, the treatment of the oil pump was not very different from the other two. Since the oil from the external oil-water separator was not used, the oil was not collected from the bottom of the oil-water separator. The oil was collected by the expansion of the through-hole in the separator. The oil was not collected, and the design of the separator is not very good.

The national staples of the menu, ranging from corned beef, Sauerbraten and Oxtail, to beef and pork knishes, are all staples of the Jewish Diaspora. However, the White House menu for the 1997-1998 year, for example, featured only one Jewish staple, the Oxtail.

It is important to note that the in vitro results are not directly comparable to the in vivo results. The in vitro results are based on a single dose of 100 mg/kg, while the in vivo results are based on a range of doses from 10 to 100 mg/kg. The in vitro results also show that the effect of the drug is dose-dependent, with higher doses resulting in higher levels of inhibition. The in vivo results show that the effect of the drug is also dose-dependent, with higher doses resulting in higher levels of inhibition. The in vitro results are therefore consistent with the in vivo results, suggesting that the drug is effective in inhibiting the growth of the bacteria.

It is worth noting that the water in the reservoirs in Central and Eastern Europe is not only polluted but also overexploited by impounding the water in the lakes which are the source of this pollution. In the Balkans, for example, the supply of water to the cities of Belgrade, Ljubljana, and Zagreb is supplied by the Sava, Drava, and Danube Rivers, or some of their tributaries. The lakes of the Danube River, on the other hand, are the source of some of the most polluted water in the world. The water after it may be turned back into the Danube River, it is still polluted. ¹ If there are any fish in a distinct bed of stone, rock would be the best material to use for the "cover" as it would be a guarantee against shales and gravel that are impermeable to be removed; while, if a useful gravel is known to be in the sand, it would be desirable.

It is the Secretary's duty to provide, if possible, the most necessary to enter Lake Superior, and this may then prove the better course. It would be better to build a canal if it had a continuous towing path (like the Welland from Huron to Ontario, as both these lakes are well adapted for sailing craft. Since the power will leave the Tallot River Valley, it may be better to put the canal aside upon it as the main line of canal, and descend from there to Lake Superior, or to the Severn bridge; or the canal may keep above the lake level from the shore near Beauport to the same point, and thus avoid the cost of a narrow, dredging, towage, &c., which are involved by entering the lake.

The township of Chatham was surveyed in 1811 in 25 636 1/2 acres. It contains 52,841 acres, the somewhat larger and smaller area of 1811 and 1841 had a population of 1,022. Presently, there are 2,000-2,500. In the latter year several immigrants from Prussia, some of them of the north-west part of the township. Amongst the first, and a teacher as well, there was Thomas Halborne, who located on the farm now occupied and owned by Abraham Hagstad. In the course of the ensuing three years some sixteen or eighteen families, all Quakers, from Pennsylvania located themselves. These were William and John Wagoner, Saml. J. He subsequently sold out to Mr. Joseph Collins, who completed these important adjuncts of settlement in 1820 and 1810. The settlement of the south-east corner of the township commenced about 1866 by settlers from the State of New York. The principal families were the Smiths, Kells, the Hens, the Hensons, the Smiths, Foxworth and others. A number of the well-dressed and educated still to be found in the town. The Government have also located a second Normal School for the county at Port Perry.

AGRICULTURE

In Agriculture as well as stockbreeding the farmers of the County of Ontario stand first in the Province. The lands are generally well tilled and well stocked, and most farmers have now comfortable dwellings and large roomy barns, with orchards and gardens and every convenience for comfort and enjoyment. The front townships have been often described as the "Garden of the West," and at the present day many of the townships are little if not more so. The sources of the wealth of the County are not far to be sought, any beyond them, but it is true that there were some who have been self-denial to bring about this prosperous state of things. The Agricultural Societies have done their share towards the desirable end, and especially have they done much in the encouragement of stock-breeding. The first County Agricultural Society was formed in February, 1853. The officers were George Bartel, President; John C. Sterling, Secretary; John Coburn, Treasurer; Edward Bartel, President; John C. Sterling, Secretary; John Coburn, Treasurer. Directors—Joseph Peterson, John Clarke, John Skier, J. C. Sterling, A. Farewell, Adam Spars, and Wm. Bouvton. Before that time there were Township Societies, which held small fairs either united or singly. The fairs of Whitby, Wainfleet, and the County of Lincoln were the best attended, and were well patronized. Cattle fairs were established at Ashburn, Columbus, Greenwood, Mr. Skier, P.L.S., and the present County Clerk, was for many years a very active officer of the County Society, serving in the offices of Secretary, Treasurer and President as well as Director. In 1855 the North Riding Cattle Show was held at Whitby. Both Societies have since grown and flourished. The first County Show was held at Whitby, on the 10th of September, 1853. The show even then is said to have surpassed those previously held in Toronto. The amount awarded in prizes was £50 currency. This was for the whole county. The amount offered the present year (1877) by the South Riding Society was £100. The South Ontario now stands amongst the first stock-breeding sections in the Province, and the North Riding is not far behind and is yearly gaining ground.

THE PRESS

The Tribune and the Friendly Monitor are the earliest papers of which we can find any trace. They were printed in Oshawa. Both became defunct, and were followed by the Freeman and Reporter in 1850, small sheets, which had only a short existence. The Whitby Freeman was ventur'd upon in 1850, to be replaced by the Whitby Reporter for a few months by J. S. Sprowle, and which subsequently became the Oshawa Reporter, a sheet of somewhat respectable dimensions, published by Messrs. Perry (J. H.) & D. Munroe, until after the death of J. S. Sprowle, by Messrs. Perry (J. H.) & D. Munroe, was started in the town in 1855. The Whitby Commonwealth was commenced in 1856 by the present proprietor of the paper, by which it has been since continuously published. The Commonwealth, and Reporter were followed by the Oshawa Times, the Watchman, the Press, all of which after short intervals disappeared, leaving the field to the Chronicle. The Chronicle has taken the place of the Chronicle's old rivals. It has gone through many changes of proprietorship, and has been in the hands of the present publisher, Mr. Thorpe, for the last six months. The Editorial has been continuously published at Oshawa since Mr. Orr's retirement, published by the present firm, Messrs. Luke & Lorko. The same gentlemen also publish the Reporter, the second paper now printed at Oshawa. The publication of a paper called the North Star was attempted at Brooklin in 1855. In North Ontario the first newspaper attempt was made in 1853, by William Hillam, Holden, the present Whitney and Lindsay Railway. The next was by Mr. James M. McGee, of Niagara Falls, who commenced the publication of the Observer at Prince Albert in 1857. Subsequently Mr. Oliver published the Reformer for a short time at the same place. The Observer is now published at Port Perry by Messrs. Baird & Parsons. Cambridge has had several newspaper ventures previous to the establishment of the present paper, the Journal and the Centinel. The late Mr. Caldwell Brown was unsuccessful in his attempt to give the name of a newspaper, Mr. Mundy kept the Advocate going for a short time, but did not succeed. The Standard was afterwards established by him at Port Perry. The Advocate was commenced at Cammington, by Mr. Currie, some half-dozen years ago. Several unsuccessful attempts have been made to publish a paper permanently in Beaverton since Hillam's time with the Packer, the last being a sheet called the Beaverton. After six or eight years of its existence, the material was removed to Woodville, where it was published as the Advocate. The first semi-weekly was published by Mr. Briggs in 1859, called the South-Whitby Chronicle, but was discontinued after a trial of six months. The Oshawa Journal was another attempt of his in 1861, which was abandoned. The papers now published in the county are—

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

This is a detailed historical map of the Eastern Hemisphere, titled "EASTERN HEMISPHERE" at the top. The map is oriented with North at the top, indicated by a "NORTH POLE" label. It shows the continents of Asia, Africa, Europe, and Australia, along with the Indian Ocean, the Southern Ocean, and the Arctic Ocean. The map is densely populated with names of cities, towns, and islands. Major cities like London, Paris, and Sydney are clearly marked. The map also includes latitude and longitude lines, with the Equator and Tropic of Cancer clearly visible. The map is framed by a decorative border with ornate corner pieces.

EASTERN HEMISPHERE

This is a detailed historical map of the Eastern Hemisphere, showing Asia, Africa, Europe, and Australia. The map is titled "THE EASTERN HEMISPHERE" at the top. It includes latitude and longitude lines, major cities, and geographical features. The map is framed by a decorative border.

The map shows the following regions and features:

- Asia: Includes the Indian subcontinent, China, Japan, and the Philippines. Major cities like Calcutta, Canton, and Peking are marked.
- Africa: Shows the continent of Africa with major cities like Cairo, Cape Town, and Durban. The Tropic of Cancer and the Equator are clearly marked.
- Europe: Includes the British Isles, Scandinavia, and the Mediterranean region. Major cities like London, Paris, and Rome are marked.
- Australia: Shows the continent of Australia with major cities like Sydney, Melbourne, and Perth. The Tropic of Capricorn and the Antarctic Circle are marked.
- Oceans and Seas: The Indian Ocean, the Red Sea, the Persian Gulf, and the South China Sea are labeled.
- Islands: Numerous islands are shown, including the Malay Archipelago, the Philippines, and the Hawaiian Islands.
- Latitude and Longitude: The map includes a grid of latitude and longitude lines, with the North Pole at the top and the South Pole at the bottom.
- Decorative Elements: The map is framed by a decorative border with ornate scrollwork and floral patterns.
